SOUTHERN SOUL

Photography:
SHANE MCKENZIE

GABRIELLE ROMANELLO

Shane McKenzie, a South Bay photographer in Southern California, has always loved photography and capturing that one moment that could never be replicated. 2 years ago, he took his passion of the beach, and combined it with shooting some amazing models. This set with Gabrielle Romanello, they wanted to capture that beach vibe yet toss in some elegance. Gabrielle knew exactly how to work the camera and her own angles, while Shane was right there to capture every moment of beauty.

A photograph of a person's feet resting on a white table in a bright room. In the background, there is a window with a view of a city street, a white radiator, and a hanging light fixture with several large, clear glass spheres. A small potted plant sits on the windowsill.

CECILIA

Cecilia doesn't have very much experience in front of the camera but that doesn't really show! Here we did a shoot with kind of a Sunday morning vibe, not really trying to make perfect flawless photographs but rather reflecting how it can actually look at her place on a Lazy Sunday!

Alex started playing with his dad's video camera long before playing with a stills camera. He used to lay on the floor of his bedroom trying to make a film with some string and his toys. His interest in photography came later. During his Erasmus university year abroad a friend showed him how to control basic speed and aperture on a camera. That's when he got hooked. Not only for photography but also for the taste of being elsewhere, moving and getting to know unfamiliar environments and people. Alex is extremely fond of lifestyle photography, portraits and nudes. When asked why he likes shooting half naked girls he simply replies "because it makes me happy!"
